

IT Strategy

TMT provides a range of IT strategy service packages to help your business develop an appropriate IT strategy to support your business goals. Given the criticality of IT to virtually all businesses, having a developed, understood, communicated, and costed IT strategy is fundamental for most organisations to achieve their aspirations.

IT STRATEGY

For many SME companies pulling this together can seem a daunting and time-consuming task, one that many people struggle to know where to start with.

TMT's IT strategy packages remove that headache and allow you to tap into the many decades of expertise held by our consultants to develop an IT roadmap for your business.

The deliverable is a document that outlines in detail what should be done and why. We will uncover when the project should be completed and why, and how it will be implemented – including budgeting and costs. It will also detail specific services and business deliverables that can be further evolved in consultation with the business leadership team.

Our range of IT strategy services is delivered by an experienced group of IT and Business Consultants who are well versed in developing such approaches.

We offer three IT Strategy packages. The precise scope of each Strategic Review service is tailored to the needs of each customer project.

Also, an option exists at the time of ordering the initial service to include periodic reviews and updates of the agreed plan, so the report and plan become an evolving document as items are delivered and the needs of the business evolve.

OUR SERVICE PACKAGES

Essential Strategic Review - Ideal for smaller customers, or those looking for an understanding of the status of their current IT infrastructure and high-level recommendations for how to evolve it in support of the current business operation.

Transitional Strategic Review - This service is designed for organisations that are looking to make a "transition" of some kind and need to understand the status of their current IT infrastructure and how it needs to evolve to support the transition. The "transition" could be, for example, a merger of two networks, the integration of two historical business applications, or the migration to cloud services either in whole or in part.

Full Strategic Review - The TMT fully encompassing review includes a review of your current IT infrastructure, a detailed understanding of your overall business goals, and sets out a fully detailed and typically multi-year plan for how to evolve your IT operations in support of them. The report contains details of all current IT systems and infrastructure, their status, and a roadmap of how they should be evolved with timescales including transition and migration plans.
